Notes to Contributors

The editors welcome original analyses or interpretations of Hume's writings and original research concerning any aspect of Hume's life, influences, intellectual milieu, or reception. We actively solicit work concerning Hume's contributions to, or influences on, any field of endeavour, including philosophy, history, politics, economics, psychology, and anthropology. We particularly welcome work that explores or sheds light on the contemporary relevance of Hume's contributions and influences.

The editors strongly encourage submission of articles in electronic form, either as an upload from the journal's editorial console, <http://console.humestudies.org>, as e-mail attachments, or on disk. All submissions should be word-processed or typed, double-spaced, prepared for anonymous review by referees, and accompanied by a brief abstract. Electronic submissions in Word or Rich Text Format are preferred; paper submissions should be in duplicate. Articles may be submitted in English, French, German, or Italian. Quotations from Hume's Treatise, Enquiries, Dissertation on the Passions, and The Natural History of Religion should be cited by section and paragraph number, and based on the new Clarendon Edition texts. Page references for the Treatise and Enquiries should also be provided to the earlier editions prepared by Selby-Bigge and Nidditch. For details, see <http://www.humestudies.org/notes.htm>. Authors are responsible for accurate quotations and should not modify punctuation or spelling.

Authors of accepted articles will receive a journal style sheet and instructions for electronic submission of the final version. Page proofs will require immediate review; author changes will not be accepted at this stage.

Electronic submissions and related correspondence should be sent to submissions@humestudies.org. Paper submissions and related correspondence should be sent to:
