The Hume Literature, 2004 and 2005

JAMES FIESER

For almost 30 years Hume Studies has published yearly bibliographies of Hume literature. Rolland Hall prepared the entries for items that were published from 1977 through 1985, and William Edward Morris continued for the publishing years 1986 through 2003. I, like many other Hume scholars, have greatly benefited from these bibliographies and I express my thanks to both Rolland and Ted for their tireless work.

This bibliography includes the Hume literature for both 2004 and 2005. I have followed the format used in previous bibliographies and have retained the practice of excluding items published in Hume Studies since these are comprehensively indexed in each November issue for that year. I encourage readers of Hume Studies to contact me at jfieser@utm.edu with additions, corrections, or bibliographical information still missing from any previous listing. I am grateful to all who have provided input on an earlier draft of this bibliography that was posted on the Internet.

Aside from the yearly bibliographies published in Hume Studies, readers may find the following bibliographical resources useful:
