

Journal of Scottish Philosophy

The Journal of Scottish Philosophy (JSP) publishes innovative work by philosophers and historians of ideas on all aspects and every period of the Scottish philosophical tradition—philosophical psychology, metaphysics, philosophy of science, ethics and moral philosophy, political and social theory, from the late scholastics of the 15th century through the 18th century Enlightenment philosophers to the Scottish Idealists of the late 19th and early 20th centuries. It has a special interest in the writings of Thomas Reid, and in the influence and impact of Scottish philosophy on the foundations of theology and education in North America.

The journal is international in scope. Its referees are drawn from experts across the world, and it regularly includes contributions from philosophers and scholars in Britain, continental Europe, Canada, the United States, Japan and South America. In addition to the publication of substantial articles, the Reviews Section provides critical notices of both important new monographs and new editions of the works of major Scottish philosophers. Subscription to the JSP, both in print and online, is available to individuals at a substantially reduced price through the International Association for Scottish Philosophy www.scottishphilosophy.org.

Published by Edinburgh University Press on behalf of the Center for the Study of Scottish Philosophy, one of three research centers based at Princeton Theological Seminary <http://libweb.ptsem.edu/collections/scottish>.

Celebrating Fifty Years of Professional Service

The Philosophy Documentation Center has served the philosophical community on a non-profit basis since 1966. We now host over 200 journals, series, conference proceedings, and other publications. We manage memberships for two dozen organizations and support essential projects such as Phil-Papers, the Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy, and TeachPhilosophy101. And we provide listings for 31,000 philosophers in the online International Directory of Philosophy. We continue to grow and everyone in the profession has contributed to our success.

To express our thanks we made all volumes of the Philosophy Research Archives freely accessible to everyone in perpetuity. A limited number of lucky people also won free access to this great collection for an entire year:

World Congress of Philosophy Collection
(1900-2015, 110 volumes)

Presidential Addresses of the American Philosophical Association
(1901–2000, 11 volumes)

Journal of Philosophical Research
(1990–present, 30 volumes)

Going forward we will continue to increase access to philosophical publications and expand services for professional associations and societies.

Thank you for your continuing support of our work!
